Tax saving strategies prior to 1 July 2026

Common claims made by individuals

The following outlines common types of deductible expenses claimed by individual taxpayers, such as employees and rental property owners, and some strategies for increasing their deductions for the 2026 income year.

1. Depreciating assets costing $300 or less

Salary and wage earners and rental property owners will generally be entitled to an immediate deduction for certain income-producing assets costing $300 or less that are purchased before 1 July 2026.

Some purchases you may consider include:

- tools of trade;
- electronic tablets, calculators or electronic organisers;
- software;
- books and trade journals;
- stationery; and
- briefcases/luggage or suitcases.

2. Car expenses

Individuals who own or lease a car (but not under a novated lease) may claim a deduction for car expenses they incur when 'travelling on work' under either the 'cents per kilometer' method or the 'log book' method.

Where an individual is eligible to use either method in an income year, they may choose the method that provides the greatest deduction for that year.

3. Clothing expenses

Individuals may pay for work-related clothing expenses before 1 July 2026, such as:

- compulsory (or non-compulsory and registered) uniforms, and occupation specific and protective clothing; and
- other associated expenses, such as dry-cleaning, laundry and repair expenses.

4. Self-education expenses

Employees may prepay deductible self-education items before 1 July 2026, such as:

- ◆ course fees (excluding any Commonwealth-supported places, such as HECS-HELP), student union fees, and tutorial fees; and

- ◆ interest on borrowings used to pay for any deductible self-education expenses.

They may also bring forward purchases of stationery and text books (i.e., those that are not required to be depreciated).

5. Other work-related expenses

Employees may also prepay any of the following expenses before 1 July 2026:

- Union fees.
- Subscriptions to trade, professional or business associations.
- Seminars and conferences.
- Income protection insurance (excluding death and total/permanent disability).
- Magazine and professional journal subscriptions.

Note: If prepaying any of the above expenses before 1 July 2026, ensure that any services being paid for will be provided within a 12-month period that ends before 1 July 2027. Otherwise, the deductions will generally need to be claimed proportionately over the period of the prepayment.
